AUTOS CLASH

Three Men Injured in Collision on Tull's Hill.

In an auto clash on the west slope of Tull's Hill last Sunday forenoon three men were injured, one of them seriously.

A Pierce Arrow car, owned by Dr. C. C. Taggart of Pittsburgh and driven by his colored chauffeur, was descending the hill and an Overland driven by the owner, John F. Morris of Johnstown, formerly of Schellsburg, was ascending the slope. The road is straight at the point of the accident and there was no occasion for the collision.

Mr. Morris saw the Pittsburgh car approaching at high speed and turned to the right as far as safety would permit, but the colored chauffeur kept in the middle of the road and struck Mr. Morris' car breaking the left front wheel. This caused the Overland to turn to the left. None of the party, which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Morris, two daughters and Edgar Horne, were injured.

The Pierce Arrow took a course to its left and ran down a steep embankment, turning over several times and landing in a ditch in a meadow, some forty feet from the road. It was badly damaged.

In the Pittsburgh car, in addition to Dr. Taggart and the chauffeur, were Mr. Smith, of the firm of McGinnis and Smith, and one other man. Dr. Taggart's arm and hip were injured slightly. Mr. Smith was seriously injured; he had several ribs broken and his head was badly bruised. The colored man's injuries were slight.

Dr. Walter F. Enfield was called by phone to the scene of the accident and the injured ones were brought to his office where they were treated. They left for Pittsburgh on the afternoon train, Mr. Smith being in charge of Miss Sarah Gordon, a graduate nurse. He stood the trip well.

The dilapidated Pierce Arrow was brought to Bedford Garage.

ANOTHER AUTO ACCIDENT

Steering Gear Failed and Car Left Road—One Seriously Injured.

Harry W. Bole and Jesse K. Bole, of Johnstown, were injured the former seriously, in an automobile accident about five miles west of McConnellsburg about 5 o'clock Monday evening. The two victims, with the former's wife and little daughter Elizabeth and the latter's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bole, were en route for Atlantic City, where they intended to spend a vacation.

Jesse Bole was driving the car when something went wrong with the steering gear and the machine turned turtle. Harry Bole was pinned under the car. When the party had been assisted from the wreckage two doctors were called and it was found that Harry and Jesse were the only sufferers. The latter had sustained a fractured collarbone. When the other injured man was picked up he was in a semi-conscious condition. It was found on examination that he had sustained a severe nervous shock and that a small bone in his left leg was fractured. The remainder of the party were all somewhat bruised.

Fountain to Be Dedicated

The public drinking fountain, secured through the efforts of the S. P. C. A., will be dedicated to the general public next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The exercises will be held on the Lutheran Church Square and will consist of several addresses and orchestral music. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Mr. Herbert Hershberger, who is employed by the Adams Express Company, New York City, is spending his vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hershberger. Mrs. S. H. Sell went to Altoona yesterday to attend a school of instruction in the work of the order of Eastern Star, which is being conducted by the Grand Matron, Mrs. Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steinbach and Mr. Chauncey Shull, of Lewistown, made an automobile trip to Bedford on Sunday and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Steiner until Tuesday.

Mrs. Clyde G. Schell of Pittsburgh, who had been visiting relatives here and in Schellsburg, left for home yesterday. She was accompanied by Mrs. S. F. Statler and Misses Emily and Margaret Statler.

Messrs. John A. Cessna of Bedford, Joseph B. Teeter of Loysburg and George Z. Replogle of Woodbury are serving as jurors at court being held at Erie this week. The former is acting as a grand juror while the other two are petit jurors.

FIREMEN DID EFFICIENT WORK

Oppenheimer Building Saved From Total Destruction.

Shortly after 3 o'clock Monday morning the town was aroused by the fire alarm, the fire being in the Oppenheimer building, corner of Pitt and Richard Streets.

The firemen responded promptly and are to be congratulated upon the effective work they did.

"The whole building is doomed" was the remark frequently heard from those who looked on, and had the flames proceeded unchecked for a few minutes, such would have been the case.

The fire originated in the meat market of Pepple Brothers, the central room on the first floor, and the contents of that room were completely destroyed and the building was badly damaged.

The corner room and the adjoining one, occupied by the Metropolitan Clothing and Shoe House, were not reached by the flames but the large stock was considerably damaged by smoke. These rooms are closed, awaiting insurance adjustment, but will likely be opened for business by the first of next week.

The room adjoining the meat market on the south is occupied by D. W. Prosser as a flour and feed store. Mr. Prosser had a large stock on hand, much of which was ruined by water, and all of which was greatly damaged by smoke.

Farmers' Exchange Burned

Thursday night of last week the large frame building on East Pitt Street occupied by the Farmers' Exchange, James M. Kegg proprietor, was completely destroyed by fire.

Mr. Kegg had greatly reduced his stock and would have started an auction the next night, intending to go out of business. There was $500 insurance on the building and $500 on the stock. Mr. Kegg was in Pittsburgh at the time of the fire.

The firemen could do nothing to save the large frame structure, but protected surrounding buildings.

Methodist Day at Lakemont Park

The annual gathering of the Methodist hosts at Lakemont Park, Altoona, occurs this year on Thursday, July 31. An unusually strong and attractive program has been arranged for the day. Rev. J. D. Fox, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, Harrisburg, and a preacher of exceptional ability, will deliver the sermon at 10:30 a. m. For the afternoon hour Dr. Robert Forbes, one of the General Secretaries of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, will give the address. Dr. Forbes is widely known and loved for his humor and pathos as well as his ability and zeal. A popular musical program will please the large audience in the evening.

Persons along the line of the Bedford Division will be favored this year, as last year, with a special train starting from Saxton at 6:50 a. m., reaching Bedford at 8:10, and Hollidaysburg at 9:38 with stops at all intermediate points. Returning this special train leaves Hollidaysburg at 7:15 p. m. This will give the full day on the grounds with opportunity of visiting Altoona by trolley.

Meals will be served on the grounds by the members of the new Grace Methodist Church of Altoona. The ice cream and restaurant privilege will be in charge of the Lakemont Methodist Church, and the checking stand will be looked after by the ladies of the Fifth Avenue Methodist Church.

Excursion trains, good on the special train, will also be sold on the regular trains, July 30 and 31, good returning until August 2. The general public are cordially invited to join with the Methodists and their friends for this annual outing.

Young Man Had Narrow Escape

Robert Bowen, 17-year-old son of E. E. Bowen of Everett, had a miraculous escape Wednesday when he fell from a scaffold, forty feet to the ground, alighting on his head in a stone pile. Beyond body bruises, he was uninjured. The lad, who was assisting carpenters in the erection of an addition to the Brethren Church on Water Street, was working on the steeple when he fell. Striking the scaffolding four times the force of the fall was broken.

Long Journey for Boy

On Friday of last week Editor O. W. Smith of the Inquirer took his little son Dale to Pittsburgh, where the boy was placed on a west-bound train. He made the remainder of the trip to California alone. On Tuesday his mother telegraphed Mr. Smith of Dale's safe arrival.

DEMOCRATS ELECT CHAIRMAN

Roland S. Morris of Philadelphia Succeeds George W. Guthrie.

Roland S. Morris of Philadelphia was elected Chairman of the Democratic State Committee at Harrisburg on Wednesday. The committeemen heard a speech by National Committeeman Palmer and adopted resolutions containing a statement to the people on behalf of the Democratic party.

Mr. Morris was elected chairman upon the resignation of George W. Guthrie, now ambassador to Japan, being first chosen to fill the unexpired term which will end on January 1 next and then for the year 1914. Mr. Morris in his address asked for the co-operation of the party and discussed the work to be done in advance of the gubernatorial election. James I. Blakslee, fourth Assistant Postmaster General, who has been secretary of the committee for two years, also presented his resignation to the chairman at the end of the session. Samuel Kunkel of Harrisburg was re-elected Treasurer. A Secretary and other officers will be appointed by the Chairman.

Chairman Guthrie's report dealt with the work of the committee for the last year, including the Presidential campaign and the Legislature. He stated that the Finance Committee had collected for the Presidential campaign $77,671.08 from nearly 5,000 persons and in regard to the legislative work said that the Legislative Committee had drafted bills in accordance with the party platform and that "a complete surrender of the progressive committee to a combination with the administration machine prevented their adoption either in whole or in part."

MATT DEFEATS BAILEY

For District Chairman — Creswell Spurns Job.

Harrisburg, July 23.—Two incidents at the meetings of the Democratic State Committee which are the talk of the town tonight are the defeat of Congressman Warren Worth Bailey of Johnstown for division chairman and the spurning of a job out west by Robert E. Creswell of Johnstown, who ran for Auditor General last fall and was defeated. Creswell is a lawyer and worth considerable money. He was offered a place as an Assistant Attorney General paying $2,000 a year and located somewhere in Oklahoma. He told Mr. Palmer a few things about independence and is not in an amiable frame of mind tonight.

Bailey was slated by the reorganizers to be chairman of the second division again. When it came to the line up it was found that Bailey, John T. Matt, member from Bedford, and A. A. Bollinger of Huntingdon, were candidates too. The vote was two for each and then Bollinger dropped out. On the eleventh ballot it was four for Matt and two for Bailey and on the next Matt got all the votes. Bailey was opposed by T. A. Osborne, the man from his own county, and S. M. Hoyer of Altoona was also against him. What the final line up was no one would say. Matt said that he regretted the contest, but he did not look sorry. The division is composed of Cambria, Blair, Bedford, Fulton, Somerset and Huntingdon Counties.

A Successful Elopement

July 16 John Cook Eicholtz and Hannah Ludlum Wentzell, of Avalon, N. J., started out to be united in the bonds of matrimony and after traveling 600 miles landed in Cumberland, Md., where the knot was tied by the pastor of the German Lutheran Church. Mr. H. A. Cook received a 'phone message that John was married and would be home Friday. The couple arrived and after staying a few days at John's home they returned to the mosquito state to receive the congratulations of the bride's parents. Mr. Eicholtz is agent at Avalon for the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad. The Gazette extends congratulations.

Cake Sale

The "Home Department" of Trinity Lutheran Sunday School will hold a cake and candy sale on the public square Saturday afternoon and evening, July 26. Home-made cake and candy, for the making of which the Lutheran ladies are famous, will be on sale at reasonable prices. Come and get your supply for the week end.

THE UNION PICNIC

First-Class Program is Being Arranged for the Occasion.

The union picnic to be held in Kilcoin's Grove, two and one-half miles east of Bedford, on Thursday, August 14, will be one of more than ordinary importance. Committees have been at work arranging for the entertainment of those who will attend, and a feature of the day's program will be music by a large orchestra under the direction of Prof. S. H. Koontz, and by a union choir in charge of Miss L. D. Shuck. Other amusements will be sack races, egg races, tugs-of-war, etc. Everybody is invited to be present, and all trains will stop at the picnic ground, thus making it convenient for all to attend.

The committees having the arrangements in charge respectfully ask all stores, as well as all other business places, to close for the day, so that all can attend and take part in the good time there is to be had.

Electric Show and Demonstration

During the coming week at Murdoch's Jewelry Store, the Bedford Electric Company, assisted by representatives of the General Electric Company, will have on display and demonstrate the many Electric household appliances manufactured by the latter company.

The people of Bedford are invited to attend these demonstrations and see the different appliances in operation. There will be in the exhibit Electric Ranges, Vacuum Cleaners, Electric Grills, Toasters, Irons, Coffee Pots, Fans and Sewing Machines operated by motors, and many other appliances that will demonstrate the value of the day service given by the Electric Company.

Don't fail to attend this demonstration during the week; it begins Tuesday, at 2 p. m., and closes Saturday night.

BATTLE OF BUSHY RUN

One Hundred Fiftieth Anniversary to be Celebrated Near Greensburg.

The Westmoreland County Historical Society will celebrate the one-hundred fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Bushy Run, near Greensburg, on August 6, 1913, at 11 a. m., on the battlefield, and has sent out a general invitation to the people of Bedford County to join with them on that day to honor the event and take part in the exercises.

The historian, Rev. Dr. Cyrus Corb has taken steps to celebrate the great victory of Henry Bouquet over the Pontiac Confederates. Invitations have been sent to the Kings Royal Rifle Corps of Great Britain, which is the modern successor of Bouquet's famous Royal American Regiment of 150 years ago that was commanded by eminent British officials.

Dr. Corb has also called on Secretary Garrison of the War Department and has the assurance that the U. S. army will be represented. Governor Tener has also personally assured the society that Pennsylvania will heartily participate in the event. The Tenth Regiment of National Guards of Pennsylvania will take part in the event.

As Bedford County contributed to the success of this great victory, all who are able should attend and take part. Dr. Daniels and others have arranged to have the flag that floated over Fort Bedford from 1758 to 1765 brought from the far west, where it now is, and have it on exhibition there on that occasion.

Shenefelt-Putt

Cyrus Blair Shenefelt of Huntingdon and Miss Cora Etta Putt of Saxton were married in Huntingdon Wednesday afternoon of last week by Rev. O. S. Franz. They will reside in Huntingdon.

SCHOOL OUTING

Teachers and Students of Everett Summer Normal

ENJOY ANNUAL PICNIC

Prizes Won at Field Sports—Delightful Day Spent in Williams' Grove.

For some time the students of the Everett Normal had been looking forward to the picnic day, which came on Friday last. The student body organized early in the week, and having elected as their president Charles Hanks, Fanny Smouse as secretary and Carl Oster as treasurer, they began to lay plans for a day of real enjoyment.

Rain deferred the time a day, the time set being Thursday. The first event was the assemblance of the students for the annual photograph, which was taken on a slope in Williams' Grove. A few only were absent so that the enrollment of more than one hundred ten made up an imposing group. The crown of the hill regained, several girls and boys displayed their boxing spirit while the measurements for various meets were being executed. It was evident from the start, that boys and girls had only robed themselves for sport instead of displaying fastidiousness and gaiety, which only stupefies hilarity and chills the pleasures longed for.

The instructors (four in number) and the students residing at the Truax Home challenged the remaining body of the school to a game of ball. Fate would not support the instigators of the game when incident decreed that five innings be adopted to induce a curtailment of the game. The first three innings were rather uneventful save that the school scored heavily. The beginning of the fourth brought with it more spirit which steadily increased, the challenging team gaining several runs. With hopes and eagerness aglow for the outcome, the Truax team were startled with the decree that the game be ended and arbitration having yielded, a bunch of bananas was awarded the opposing side. The noon hour already passed, with many sports to follow, it was deemed a fortunate circumstance that the baseball issue ended at its climax thus far reached, thus sparing the energy of untrained athletes of the amateur type, for higher honors.

The Refreshment Committee, composed of Dulcie Hann, Edna Diehl, Lloyd Mellott and Ethel Knipple, with Ira Robinson chairman, was prompt in carrying into effect its duty, diplomatically enrolling a corps of deputies to aid in serving lunch, a very pleasing menu having been prepared. The students arranged in an irregular circle, were none the worse off on account of the lateness of the hour, but savored mirthfully of the sandwiches, pickles, bananas, Nabisco, cakes and ice cream unmindful of school problems with which they were surrounded.

The field sports were made alluring through the efforts of the Prize Solicitors, Snowden, Hite and Whetstone, who collected no less than twenty presents from the Everett business firms, to serve as prizes for the winners in the various contests. The bunch of bananas previously awarded, was the gift of Frank Campagna. Girls were enrolled for the Shot-put, which resulted in Harriet Miller (a Saxton girl) winning over twenty competitors, with a score of 27 feet 6 inches; Nannie Hite (Cumberland Valley) a close second at 27 feet and Sara Devore (Bedford Township) third, at 24. Prizes were assigned respectively, a box of candy, gift of Jacob Truax; a vase, J. S. Sheeder; candy, L. L. Evans.

A tug of war between Misses Smouse, Hann, Knipple, Dilling and Gordon and Misses Pee, Mickey, J. Miller, Hite, Devore and M. Poor, resulted in a victory for the latter team, for which they received a choice box of candy, the gift of Ernest Geinger. The losers shared the pleasure with a box of candy given by D. E. Bottomfield.

Two wheelbarrows were pressed into service by the blindfolded girls, who vied for a prize on who might come closest to a stake fifty yards distant. Members of the faculty umpired the contest and two of these proved their inherent power to charm, one especially being adjudged of hypnotism, as the lady whom he had in charge, mysteriously followed him about until she steered directly toward the setting sun opposite to the direction intended. Just as mysteriously, this same instructor won the Faculty Race. Several girls wheeled in graceful curves to right and left, while others zig zagged at sharp angles due to powers of nature unsolved, and sometimes came unexpectedly close to the stake. Minnie Price (Everett R. D. 4) received the first prize, a box of stationery, by D. F. Whetstone. Alma Gordon took the second prize donated by Howard Weaverling.

About 18 boys ran for honors in the 75-yard dash, in groups of six, one of the members of the faculty joining them. The victors of each heat ran the final, allowing Snowden to come out first for the watch fob given by W. S. Bussard. Mellott (Breezewood) secured a valuable pocket knife, given by Frank Herman, as second prize. Rose (Cumberland Valley) was a close third when Snowden struck the line.

The girls then lined up for a 50-yard dash, with vigor, six running at a time. Foreman (Everett R. D. 1) proved herself the swiftest and won the Ladies' Hand Bag given by the Everett Supply Company. The camera caught the fleet-footed athletes as the line broke, and recorded the athletic poise of Mickey (Cumberland Valley), Knipple (Everett) and Hite (Cumberland Valley), the last girl, with head forward, and whole frame bent in easy motion, won second in a style fitting the college runner. She received a toilet case, the gift of A. H. Whetstone.

A Tug of War with four boys at one end and eight girls at the other turned in favor of the boys, their reward being two jars of choice candy given by James Evans.

Snowden (Cumberland Valley) again showed his worth in the Broad Jump of 15 feet and 1 1/2 inches, winning a handsome set of cuff links and tie pin, L. C. Mann donor. Baker (Saxton) made it 14—8 and received a valuable watch fob offered by D. Deibaugh. Rose (Cumberland Valley) took third with a pair of cuff links given by W. S. Bussard. Messrs. Barney, Bartoo and Grimm jumped in competition with the students, but landed short.

The boys put the shot in competition for a military set given by A. Abramson and Mellott (Breezewood) won. Charles Hanks (Clearville) came in second to receive a necktie at the expense of F. S. Lucas. Then Rose (Cumberland Valley) won a high grade ball bat given by the First National Bank, for throwing a baseball the greatest distance, Harclerode being second. The afternoon was well nigh spent, but still a respectable number of students remained upon the field to enjoy each contest to a finish. The girls chose sides for a baseball game while the boys began the High Jump. Snowden won first in this, Gump & Sons rewarding him with a baseball mit; Swartzwelder (Breezewood) taking a handsome pipe as a second premium from Charles Ott. A three-leg race was won by Hite and Rose, their prize being a box of cigars, by O. W. Clapper.

The girls playing under the Everett team defeated the Normal School, the captain, Miss Dulcie Hann, of the winning team, securing an enviable box of stationery given by W. A. Alexander. The losers received some consolation in the gift of a jar of marshmallows also given by James Evans. In the ball game of the forenoon, J. McIntyre pitched, and Mellott caught for the School team; while Rose and Snowden played similar parts on the Truax team. S. Poor and Hite, R. Smith and Smouse played respectively on the Normal and Everett teams of girls, and deserved a larger number of spectators than were left to witness several cunning plays.

The photograph of the united ball teams closed the day's events. There was not a hitch throughout worth mentioning. The weather was not too warm nor the sun too hot to give each one a chance to take a part in any sports. More boys and girls showed the proper spirit than is usually shown at similar gatherings, and more still would have reaped keener pleasures had they run or wheeled, swung the bat or pulled the rope, rather than be merely lookers-on. Picnic means pleasure in healthy games of a chivalrous type, and what a contrast is there in the modern way of picnicking compared to the more monotonous types of sport shared in a decade or two ago! The Grecian type of pleasure is being responded to more freely in similar outings year by year. Olympian games being substituted for the colonial "bingo" of earlier American days.

It is to be regretted that our co-worker, Mr. Metzger, could not be present due to sickness. When the Faculty Race came off, he was most noticeably absent, and had he been along, surely one page more would have been added to his unwritten book of History. The outing in the woods is over. The next event will be an inning of two days' duration, in which we hope many more students will take a successful part.

A WOMAN'S WORK

sometimes reduces her strength to the depths of weakness—her devotion to household cares prevents sufficient rest and recreation. Thousands of women in this condition find Scott's Emulsion exactly what they need; it is predigested body-food so medically perfected that every drop yields direct returns in strengthening the organs and tissues and in making healthy, life-sustaining blood. Scott's Emulsion is devoid of alcohol or any harmful drugs, and overcomes tiredness and nervousness in a marvelous way.

Laws 4,000 Years Old

What is said to be an archaeological discovery of great interest to scholars the world over is announced by the museum of the University of Pennsylvania. It is a shattered tablet, upon particles of which, pieced together, are inscribed many of the missing laws from the code of King Hammurki, who ruled Babylonia at a period estimated about 2100 to 2300 B. C. Most of the laws, as deciphered, refer to financial transactions, and one contains the gem from which, perhaps, sprang all bankrupt laws of the last 4,000 years. No criminal statutes are expounded.

The tablet, which is believed to be part of the oldest collection of laws and precepts extant, was found at Susa in the winter of 1901-2 by M. De Morgan, a French archaeologist, and brought to Philadelphia recently by an expedition of the university returning from Nippur, an ancient city in Babylonia where the University of Pennsylvania has made extensive excavations.

Dr. Arna Penobe, of the University of Breslau, a distinguished oriental scholar, deciphered the much-worn Babylonian characters. The law relating to bankruptcy says:

"If a man has borrowed grain or money from the merchant and has neither grain nor money to pay back, but he has movable goods, he shall give whatever he has to the merchant in the presence of witnesses according as—(words missing)—the merchant shall not refuse; he must accept."

Another law, dealing with interest, says:

"If the merchant lends grain upon interest he shall take one-fifth of a ker or grain for each ker as interest. If he lends money upon interest he shall take a sixth and six grains of silver for each shekel as interest."

This would have required borrowers to pay interest at the rate of twenty per cent. Another law provided that if a merchant charged compound interest he should lose the principal and six times the amount of interest as forfeit.

The borrower who had been robbed and had nothing with which to repay was compelled to go to the temple and take oath to his losses, after which he was permitted his freedom.

Provision was made in the ancient law for the business man who met with failure, for it is set forth in the tablet that if an agent returning from a tour has made no profits the merchant may not claim interest on goods or for money advanced.

NO MORE RUNNING SORES

Ed. D. Heckerman Sells an Ointment Called San Cura That is a Positive Cure.

It matters not how old, persistent or poisonous the sore is, San Cura Ointment, the powerful antiseptic, will draw out every particle of poison and promptly heal the sore.

So sure of this are the owners, the Thompson Medical Co., that they have authorized Ed. D. Heckerman to return the purchase price if San Cura Ointment doesn't do all this paper says it will do. No fairer offer was ever made.

B. D. Dutton, Titusville, Pa., says: "My arm was covered with twenty-four running sores and swollen to twice its natural size. San Cura Ointment removed the pain, drew out the poison and healed the arm in an incredibly short time. It is the greatest compound for healing I ever used."

The mighty healing powers of San Cura Ointment are little short of marvelous. It gives instant relief, and is guaranteed to cure salt rheum, eczema, bleeding, itching or protruding piles, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, chapped hands, and chilblains. For cuts, burns, scalds and bruises, it stops all pain quickly and heals promptly. 25c and 50c a jar. By mail on receipt of price, if your druggist is out of it or does not keep it.

San Cura Soap

For tender, itching or irritable skin, wash with San Cura, the only antiseptic soap that soothes and heals, and kills all germs of disease. It will cure pimples, blackheads, and make the complexion clear and attractive. 25c at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

An Orchestra of One-Armed Men

One of the most popular orchestras in Portland, Ore., is composed entirely of one-armed men, six of whom are minus a right hand or arm, while the seventh has only a right hand. The instruments used are a piano, violin, cello, cornet, trombone, mandolin and drums. This unique organization of musicians is in great demand for dances. A picture of the orchestra appears in the August Popular Mechanics Magazine.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Writes About Famous Southern Battlefield—Battle Above Clouds. Chattanooga, Tenn., July 21.

Since writing you last, I have been to Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and landed here a couple days ago. Last evening I watered the lawn and pulled weeds for the chickens and pigeons, in order that these birds might get a blade of green grass. This I did at Nevin Heckerman's, while he bossed the getting of the supper, his wife and little girl being at my home in Bedford just now. I surely did miss them, but hope to get home ere they leave for their home down here, and I am told that they want to be here for the G. A. R. encampment in September.

This city being many pegs ahead of the other Southern cities, of course, will be delighted to extend its well known Southern hospitality to the grand army veterans and their friends during this, the forty-seventh annual encampment. Elaborate arrangements have already been made to entertain the thousands of visitors that are expected. Here the old veterans, who are stooped now with the weight of years, will once more meet face to face their many comrades in this, the grand old Southland and enjoy once more the pleasure and privilege of camping on the old battle fields and talking about the battles won and lost. Many special trains for the accommodation of the visitors will be operated on all the lines and still many more will be put on to carry the veterans to the various battle fields. Each of the trains will be in charge of a special agent, whose duty will be to look after the wants of the veterans, their wives and friends.

The United States Government, by authority of Congress, has purchased the entire Chickamauga Battlefield, which embraces over fifteen square miles, and has converted it into a most beautiful park. This park is about an hour's ride from Ninth and Market Streets, city, and can be reached by electric car line. Congress and the various states have expended millions of dollars for the erection of monuments and the improvement of the walks and driveways. Only one monument has a lady on it I was told on my last visit to this park and the fact was told me by a four-year-old girl, who seemed posted, as well as the older ones in the auto in which we were all seated. The many old roads used by the soldiers of both armies have been reopened, regraded and each one put in first-class order. Historians say with one accord that it is the best preserved battlefield in the world. The great battle of Lookout Mountain was fought November 1863. "This called the battle above the clouds." This said that the fight was a fierce one on both sides. I have several times written you from this city, but I have never given you details as to how to get about. From the time the Indians were removed by the government in 1838 until the outbreak of the rebellion, Chattanooga grew slowly. I think that in 1840 the population was only 500 and this included whites, Indians and negroes. In 1870, when the first census was taken, the number of inhabitants was over six thousand. The city today numbers about 100,000 and this is a steady but marvelous growth. Market Street is about 700 feet above sea level, whilst Bedford is between ten and eleven hundred. There are many mineral springs in and about Chattanooga. The air is pure and the climate so even that to me it is certainly a very healthy city.

There are many places of amusement to bide to, if you are tired staying at home. The various families living here, having moved from Bedford, swear by their new homes. They are each getting along very nicely and all believe that the man who dares is the man who wins; that the blind sighted man never sees an opportunity until it has passed; that the conceited man knows where all the best things of this land are without being told; that the suspicious man is always afraid that some one will rob him. Our boys think and say that such men never get ahead. They simply can't—they are afraid to try. If this country were entirely populated with the above classes of men, this country would never have undergone the great growth in industrial matters that it has. Nevin and Joe are each pulling hard against the stream and are each gaining ground.

We need rain. A good soaking rain would make many nubbins of corn. Please send paper to Glen Rock Hotel, Asheville, N. C.

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

She Learned to Keep a Bank Account

By OSCAR COX

"My dear," said Robert Read, "what is this nonsense about your joining the suffragists?"

"Why, it's no nonsense at all, Bob. I've joined."

"Will you kindly tell me your object?"

"Well, you see, there are lots of women who own property, and they are interested in making the laws that govern that property. They should have a voice in electing the right officials."

"But you have no property?"

"Haven't I a husband who has? And haven't he die and leave it to me?" Mr. Read found this argument too much for him. He thought awhile.

"What you have said," he remarked later, reminds me that, I being liable to die before you do, you will need some knowledge of taking care of property. I think I had better give you some instructions in that direction, else a vote will do you no good, for you won't know enough to use it."

"No fear of that. However, I am ready to be instructed."

"I shall begin with teaching you to keep a bank account. Ever since I went away and left orders with the bank to honor your checks and you forged my name I have felt that you should know more about such matters."

"That was very stupid, wasn't it?"

"I should say so."

A few days later the husband gave his wife a check book, a pass book and a check for a hundred dollars, explaining what each book was for, and told her that she was to deposit the check in the bank. He also told her how to enter each deposit in her check book and subtract each check from her total deposits so that her balance would be always before her. He wrote "For deposit" on the check and told her to sign her name under it, explaining that the words were to indicate the purpose for which it was indorsed and that it was not to be paid to any one. Then he made out her deposit ticket for her, put it with the check in the pass book, and the lesson was ended.

A few days later he came home and found his wife in tears.

"What is it, sweetheart?" he asked anxiously.

"I dare not tell you," she moaned.

"Anything happen to the children?"

"No."

"Don't keep me in suspense."

"I've lost the hundred dollars you gave me for the bank."

"Why, I didn't understand that you were going to draw it."

"I didn't put it in."

"Oh, well, if you've only lost the check it doesn't matter."

"I haven't lost it." Fresh tears started.

"Well, what became of it?"

"I was cleaning out my desk and burning the old papers in it. I threw a lot of things into a wastebasket and dumped them into the kitchen range. The check and the little book it was in are all burned up."

She sobbed as though her heart would break.

Her husband looked at her pityingly, a smile of hopelessness on his lips.

She thought the check was destructible, like a bank bill.

He kissed away her tears, explained how he would give her another check in place of the one she had burned and gave her another lesson on the subject. She was sure she understood him perfectly. The lessons were continued for many months, and Mr. Read became convinced that his wife had learned all about banking. At any rate, she made deposits and drew checks as well as anybody.

Then one day when Mr. Read went into the bank he was called in to the office of the cashier, who gave an "ahem" and said:

"Your wife, who has an account with us, needs some explanation of banking methods."

"What's she been doing?"

"Nothing of any importance; nothing wrong. It is simply a matter of ignorance of banking. We notified her a few days ago that her account was overdrawn, and she sent us her check on our own bank to cover the deficiency."

"Humph!" grunted Mr. Read. "How much is it?"

"Two hundred and forty dollars."

Mr. Read drew a check for the amount and when he went home in the evening kissed his wife as usual and began reading the evening paper.

"Anything new in town today, dear?" asked Mrs. Read.

"Yes; it is reported that a new banking law has passed congress."

"Indeed! What are its main features?"

"It will make paying an overdraft with a check of the person overdrawing, drawn on the bank where the overdraft has occurred, illegal. You can't do that any more."

"Isn't it fortunate that I paid up before the law was passed?"

"Very. If you're tired of the trouble of keeping your account suppose you put yours in with mine."

"I think I will. You know I only did it to learn how, and, now that I have learned, I don't need to bother with it any more."

"Just so. Let's go down to dinner."

"Bob," she said a few days later, "I've been thinking that if you should die before me how nice it will be now that I've learned business and will be able to take care of my own affairs."

"You won't need another husband will you?"

She looked at him reproachfully.

Suffered Twenty-One Years—Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. The physicians called it "Mother's Pain" and injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hopes of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several smaller ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity.

Gratefully yours,

MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE,

Avoyelles Par. Marksboro, La.

Personally appeared before me, this 15th day of July, 1911, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

THOUSANDS OF POSTMASTERS MAY LOSE JOBS

According to an executive order issued by President Wilson, practically all Fourth-Class Postmasters will be compelled to take a Civil Service examination to determine whether they may continue to hold their offices. These examinations will be open to all other applicants who may want the postmastership.

Appointments of Fourth-Class Postmasters will hereafter be for life. The man who gets the job this time will have it as long as he lives.

A Fourth-Class Postmastership pays as high as $1,000 a year, with Money Order and Registry Fees extra, but it is worth several times that amount to any merchant. The entire population served by the Post Office and its Rural Routes comes into his store to transact business. Thousands of dollars of additional trade can thus be secured.

If you have the Post Office, you can't afford to lose it. If you don't have the Post Office, NOW is your chance to get it. The office will go to the man passing the best examination, and he can hold it for the rest of his life.

For over 10 years the International Correspondence Schools have been preparing men and women to successfully pass Civil Service Examinations. The I. C. S. Course for Fourth-Class Postmasters will give you just the information you need to successfully pass this examination.

Fill in and mail the attached coupon—it won't obligate you in the least—and the I. C. S. will explain how they can qualify you to successfully pass this examination for Fourth-Class Postmaster and secure your Post Office for life. Mark the Coupon—NOW.

ONE CAN NEVER TELL

By HAROLD DAY.

"Be ye again to swear away the life of your own son—our son, Mary?"

The old man's voice quavered and sunk into a whine.

"I'm goin' to tell the truth," replied the old woman with a weary smile. "He threw it away himself and killed his brother—my baby. I saw him do it, and I'm goin' to tell the truth and let him be punished."

"But Tom's your boy too, Mary—your oldest," persisted the old man. "What's he ever done to show it?" cried the woman fiercely. "He struck me—yes, struck me with his own hand; not once, but twenty times. Aye, and he struck you too, Nat. I seen him do it more'n once. What comfort has he ever been to us? What pride have we in him, what hope for his future? No, no, Nat, we might as well give up and call our lives a failure. He's been a bad boy, and he's a bad man, and he's killed his own brother, and I won't do anythin' to save him."

"But he was in licker when he did it," pleaded the old man. "You know Tom was not very bad except when he was in licker. And he wasn't himself when he did it. And he feels as sorry as anybody for it now. Not the gallow! Ah! Mary, not the gallow!" and he slipped from his chair onto his knees and sobbed before her. "Where's Peter?" demanded the woman, drawing back her skirts, which the man attempted to cling pathetically to. "Where's my Pete, who never did a wrong to anybody, and who always was bullied and licked by Tom? I won't save him, I tell you I won't."

The day of the trial came, and the prosecuting attorney arose, calm and confident, as he addressed the jury. Here was an easy case, and it promised to be brief. He would get a quick conviction and the accompanying glory and would hurry along other cases and show a dispatch of business which would reflect great credit upon his office. The conviction was sure, because the boy's mother was to go on the stand to testify against him.

It had been a brutal murder, too—the killing of Peter Harter by his brother Tom. As nearly as could be found out he had been stabbed without warning simply because he expostulated with his brother for brutal language used to the old mother.

It would be a good thing for the community, moreover, to get rid of Tom Harter. He always had been a bad egg, and a menace to peaceable, law-abiding citizens.

"This case, gentlemen, is fortunately so plain that it will be necessary to detain you but a few moments. In fact, I think one witness will determine the entire matter. Let Mary Harter be sworn."

As the woman took her seat in the witness box an almost imperceptible but heart-breaking moan came from the white lips of the old man, whose side she left. It caught her ear, and she turned her eyes upon him. As she looked, his drawn face and terror-stricken eyes faded from her sight in a sort of mist through which she saw the face of her young lover of forty years ago. She saw him beside her at the altar on that day of days when all the future was bright and all the sky rose-colored.

And out of the mist came the outlines of the cradle in which she had rocked her first-born—the cradle Nat had built with his own hands.

Then she heard as in a dream the smug voice of the prosecuting attorney:

"Now, Mrs. Harter, tell the jury your name and relationship to the prisoner and the victim of this brutal murder, and in your own words tell if you saw the deed committed and just how it happened."

Turning bewildered eyes on the lawyer, the court and the jury, the woman gave her name and address. Then gazing straight at her husband through tear-filled eyes, she said, with perfect deliberation and emphasis:

"Tom and Pete had some words about some money and Pete got mad and said: 'I'll kill you, you low, good-for-nothin' blaggard; that's what I'll do,' and he struck him with a chair and drove him back into the corner. Tom was tryin' to defend himself, and he saw he was goin' to get his head broke, and there was murder in Pete's eyes, and Tom reached out for the knife that was on the table and struck at Pete. And it killed him. And that was all there was to it."

During this testimony the prisoner and his father had leaped to their feet, the former with amazement depicted on his face, the latter with tears starting to his eyes, while the prosecuting attorney sat back with mouth wide open, so thoroughly paralyzed that he never protested as the old woman, at the end of her testimony, arose and stepped down from the witness chair.

She never looked at the prisoner, but walked straight to her husband and, hand in hand, they walked from the court room.

"I will ask that the case be dismissed," said the prosecuting attorney. "And I will recommend a study of woman's nature to every law student."

Lock Speed

Lock speed is a big element of success in making high scores at the trap or in the field.

When you pull the trigger you want it to go with lightning speed. Flying birds and targets will not wait for a long fire load or a slow lock. Our lock was carefully and scientifically timed at the University of Cornell. Test was made by means of the fly wheel traveling 37,175 inches per second. By means of a special device it was found that the fly wheel traveled 335 inches while hammer was falling. Dividing 335 by 37,175 gives the time it took hammer to fall .00904, or expressed in fractional form 1/110 of a second.

When hammer struck it was traveling 233 inches per second.

We figure that this increased lightning speed will increase your score at least 5 per cent. The slower the lock and the slower the load the farther you have to lead your birds. WONDERFUL MATERIAL

Great Men Are Giving Their Best Work Every Week.

No newspaper in the country has ever had such a galaxy of brilliant literary talent on its roster regularly as is the case with the Pittsburgh Sunday Dispatch at the present time. President Wilson, no less because of his literary attainments than because of his high office, heads the list, and the name of his Chief Executive is quickly followed by such men as Finley Peter Dunne, creator of the immortal Mr. Dooley; George Ade, the man who made the fable popular; Alfred Henry Lewis, who put "Wolfville" on the map; O. Henry, acknowledged as the uncrowned king of all American short story writers, and Frank Carpenter, prince among travelers. These are merely the headlines, the stars, among the hundreds of contributors of a newspaper acknowledged to be the greatest in all the land.

All these great men are giving their best work on The Sunday Dispatch, and in no small measure. President Wilson is taking the readers of this great paper into his innermost confidence as no President has done in the history of the Republic. Mr. Dooley is right now doing his very finest work. George Ade has renewed his early youth and his new fables set those on which he won his fame far in the shade, fascinating as those efforts undoubtedly were. Alfred Henry Lewis tells the story of nation-famous murders which occurred in New York, and he is telling them with all the verve and dash which characterized his "Wolfville" tales. O. Henry, who died at the height of his literary career, is represented by "Stories of the Gentle Grafters," long cited among his very best works. He has now come into a permanent place at the head of the well-filled ranks of short-story writers and on this account examples of his work are worthy of the closest attention of every person. Frank Carpenter is writing important interviews with big men of national prominence, each one of them telling of vigorous effort along some interesting line of industry or thought.

Those noted writers are by no means all whose work go into this magnificent newspaper. There are many others, all of them firmly fixed in public estimation as the best now writing in his or her particular line. It is absolutely without precedence that a single newspaper can present such an array of brilliant talent. Ordinary journals would be content with one, or at the most two, of these big features, but that is not the way of The Sunday Dispatch. Famed as "the best always," it is not content to give its readers anything but the very best at all times and a great deal of it. This newspaper disappears from newsstands and from hands of carriers at most rapid rate.

On that account it is absolutely necessary that intending readers order it early and make sure of obtaining the whole paper.

Fly-Fishing Hints

On cold, windy days leave your feather-weight rod in the rack; select a rod with a stiff backbone and strong casting power; use a level line, suited to the rod, so that you can cast it straight into the very teeth of a gale—a lightly tapered line is difficult to cast against wind. For the same reason use a heavy, level leader. If the season is still young, do not accept defeat until you have tried your largest flies, even as large as number 6 in large streams, particularly if the stream is in flood.

NOTHING MAY BE VERY FUNNY.

Weedon Grossmith Proved It to Henry Irving's Satisfaction.

In "From Studio to Stage" Weedon Grossmith tells us of his invitation to play Jacques Strop to Henry Irving's Robert Macaire. He says it took his breath away. Irving told him that he had received good reports of the young actor from Booth and Jefferson in America and arranged to pay him $10 a week if that would be enough.

"I didn't tell him that I would have played the part for nothing and have willingly given a premium to have done so (if I had had the premium). I positively received $10 a week to be entrusted in the art of acting by the greatest actor of our time! It was worth hundreds to me both from an artistic and a business point of view. The pains and trouble Irving took with every one over the slightest detail were remarkable. I admit he was very trying at times, especially when I was doing something quietly humorous—or, rather, nothing—and he would gaze on me very solemnly and say, 'That's not funny, my boy. You must do something funny there.'"

"I proved to him, however, on the first night that sitting perfectly still on the staircase looking the picture of misery was decidedly funny; at least the audience thought so—so much so that the great chief said to me afterward, 'What were you doing on the staircase that made the audience laugh so much?'"

"Nothing," I replied.

"All right, my boy; do it again," he answered.

DEAD AIR IN THE LUNGS.

When You Yawn You Expel It, So Don't Be Afraid to Yawn.

With ordinary breathing the lungs are not completely filled with air, nor are they entirely emptied every time you exhale during natural respiration. This leaves a quantity of dead air in the lungs, generally away down in the lower lobes. This is called "residual" air, and after it stays there awhile and becomes foul nature casts about for some means to make you get rid of it. The yawn is the thing, so nature makes you yawn. You open your mouth to its fullest extent, throw back your head, strain with the back muscles of the jaw, and you can then feel your lungs move as they force out all the foul air and take in fresh. In this manner are the lungs actually ventilated.

Yawning also ventilates the air passages in the mouth, throat and upper portion of the chest leading to the lungs. And again yawning is really an aid to hearing.

The cracking sound which you so often hear when giving an extra big yawn is due to the stretching and opening of the eustachian tubes. These tubes communicate between the ears and the back of the throat. If they are congested, which happens when you have a bad cold in the head, people complain of deafness.

If you feel inclined to yawn then do so. It is nature's way of cleaning out your lungs and air passages. —New York American.

Curing Wood.

Wood has contagious diseases! A stick of wood in a lumber yard may be sick and infect other timbers, which later may develop the disease when they are supporting great weights in a new building. Some of the diseases are so contagious that in a building they will jump several feet across masonry or brick to some stick of healthy wood. Cures have been discussed by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Most of the diseases are varieties of dry rot caused by fungus, and most of the varieties of the dry rot fungi cannot stand heat much over 100 degrees, so the most likely cure is to close a building up tight, if any beams are infected, and heat it up to 120 or 140 degrees. Even this is not always successful, for ends of beams are buried in the outer brick walls, and the heat may not reach them.—Exchange

AUTO ACCIDENTS

The wreck of two automobiles and the injury of three people last Sunday on a good, straight road on the west side of Tull's Hill, where there was plenty of room to pass, was but another instance of reckless driving.

The car traveling west was going at such a rate as to cause Mr. Morris, who was driving the Johnstown car, to be fearful, hence he gave all the road possible to the approaching car, when common courtesy should have reversed conditions as Mr. Morris was ascending the hill; but the colored chauffeur, disregarding the rights of others, kept in the middle of the road and struck Mr. Morris' car, the result being given in detail elsewhere in this issue.

This is but one of many similar instances of recklessness which must eventually lead to legal restrictions.

The number of lives lost in such accidents is alarming, and the time will probably come when the manufacture or shipping into the state of machines geared to run over a reasonable speed will be prohibited.

The people of this town will not be greatly surprised to hear of a collision on our streets, for many motorists, some of them local, disregard the law and approach street crossings without using their horns, sometimes at a high rate of speed.

We do not believe in "hair-splitting" in requiring obedience to the auto laws but we do think that reason should be used in running on our streets.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Mrs. George Hissong and three sons went to David Griffith's Friday evening to spend a week or more.

Misses Beatrice and Louise Allen, of Bedford, are spending their vacation at this place with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Hissong, and are having a good time.

Miss Della Yardell and Miss Seese, of Johnstown, paid your correspondent's family a call Sunday afternoon for a short time.

Your correspondent spent Friday in Bedford and noticed that the township road from Point to Napier is much smoother and better drained and in much better condition than it has been for a long time. There has been a new watering trough put up at the old Kennedy place, now owned by Mr. Evans, which is an improvement for everybody who travels the road.

Some of the citizens of Point and along the Valley Road, who have children and stock, are talking of having the fast running of motorcycles and racing stopped. They say that the roads are kept up for easy and convenient travel for the public, and not for racing or timing of motorcycles. It is said that one person has run on these roads at the rate of sixty miles in forty-five minutes. Such running is dangerous to everybody and should be stopped at once. Hooker.

HER SACRED DUTY

It Was to Teach a Pompous Young Man a Merited Lesson.

By GRACE KERRIGAN.

They said of Bruce Charlton, son of the banker at Maysville, that he was a pompous cold-blooded young man. He had finished at college and been given a place in the bank.

It was said of him that when a sewer blew up as he was walking along the street one day, and he was lifted thirty feet high, that he descended with proper dignity, and did not even lose his grip on his cane.

"What a tyrant of a husband he'd be," said one young lady.

No wife would dare call him by his first name," said another.

"He'd demand that she address him as Mr. Bruce Charlton, Esq!" was the criticism of the third.

They said of Miss Inez Barton, the daughter of a broker in the city, that she was too flighty; that she was too impetuous; that her quick temper would drive away all her lovers, and that she would in time find herself an old maid.

None of the critics hit the nail on the head in either case. Mr. Charlton had passed a final examination, fallen into an extra fine position, and had been complimented on being a smart young man in several directions. It was therefore natural that his head was swelled a bit, and that his good opinion of himself should be shown in his attitude towards others. In only one thing was he weak.

After a month's stay in London he came home to say "cawn't," and "doncher know," and "jolly well" and other things affected by the Johnnies across the big water. He imagined it smacked of "foreign culture," and to clinch his case he brought back with him an English bulldog so homely that he scared a mule into fits the first day he landed.

That was all—just one weak spot, and no one called him a cad on account of it. "Foreign culture" is like "whitewash on a fence—it begins to peel and flake after a few days.

Every morning from eight until nine young Mr. Charlton mounted his steed and had a gallop. It was not an English steed, but the rider affected the English pose in the saddle, and his bulldog followed at his heels and maintained the proper expression of countenance.

When Miss Inez Barton came down to "Meadow Green" to pass a month with a married sister she brought nothing English. She had her American pony and her American saddle and coach dog sent down to her. Every morning from eight until nine she went for a gallop.

Mr. Charlton rode towards "Green Meadows" in his gallops.

Miss Inez rode towards Maysville in her gallops.

It was inevitable as taxes that they must meet. They did meet, and on the very first morning that she rode out. She caught sight of the young man and smiled to herself.

"Why, I didn't know that bean-poles rode horses out in the country!"

As Mr. Charlton always looked straight ahead when he rode, he, of course, caught sight of the girl at an early moment. He also mused:

"B'gawgee, but I can't make it out 'ye know!"

If he had stopped and raised his cap and asked Miss Inez if she could tell him where the widow Jones lived it is probable that she would have smiled, one of her winsome smiles and flirted a bit, but he passed her like a wooden man. Her dog wanted to say some thing to his canine, but the bull galloped and never broke his pace. As both were returning homewards they passed again.

"He's a fool!" said the girl to her self.

"I cawn't—I really cawn't!" said the young man to himself.

"Say," said the girl to her sister after the latter had posted her as to who "bean-pole" was and his social standing, "I feel that I've a sacred duty to perform out here."

"Yes?"

"It's to take young Mr. Charlton down about 14 pegs."

"But how can you?"

"I don't know yet, but I'll find a way."

She didn't have to plan 'til her head ached. Her coach dog did the planning. The English bulldog had no need him by a growl. He felt the humiliation. He didn't want to be snubbed, either. He gave the matter due consideration that evening, and when he started out next morning he had something in view.

"Bean-pole" appeared. There was a piker down his back, and his eyes looked at the landscape a mile ahead. His bulldog appeared, and he was plastered all over with dignity, but he did. He waited 'til the other had passed by and then followed up and nipped him on the hind leg.

You can't nip a bulldog and get away with it. This one turned and seized the coach dog and shook him as if he had been a rat, and then tossed him high in the air. Miss Inez uttered one scream and was off her pony and lashing the bull with her whip.

"Aw! Aw! B'jove!"

It was Mr. Charlton. He had heard the row and returned.

"Aw! Aw!" mimicked the girl as she looked up at him.

"I take it that there was a conflict 'doncher know?"

"There was, doncher see!"

"Bless me!"

"B'jove!"

Mr. Charlton had forgotten to lift his cap. He now lifted it. He had forgotten to remove the monocle from his eye. He now removed it. He had forgotten to dismount. He now dismounted.

"I beg your pardon, I am suah," he said after a moment of embarrassing silence.

"It's grawnted, sir!"

She led her horse into the roadside ditch and mounted from the bank. He wanted to offer his assistance, but did not dare. He was a picture of confusion and foolishness as she tossed her head and rode away. He started to say "B'jove!" but changed it to:

"Well, what do you think of that?"

He was English no longer. He had become a full-blooded American in about ten minutes. If there was any doubt about it his talk with his dog after the girl's departure would have settled the matter.

"You fool of a dog, but you see what you have done!" he shouted at the canine who came fawning around to get a word of praise. "There was a mighty good-looking girl, and you had to go and bite her dog and give her a chance to make a fool of me! You ought to have your head knocked off!"

"Well, did you take anybody down a peg or two this morning?" asked the sister as Miss Inez reached her home after her ride.

"A dozen pegs, sister. You just ought to have been there! Monocle—saddle—eyes front—bulldog—b'jove—doncher know—beg pawdon—aw—aw! Oh, it was great!"

"And what did you do?"

"I out-Englished him. His dog licked Jack, but he can't do it again."

"I hope you didn't give him the idea that you were bold."

"I gave him the idea that he was in America, I guess!"

That afternoon the brother-in-law went to town and bought a dog collar full of sharp spikes, and next morning before the ride the canine's hair was rubbed full of cayenne pepper. When ready to ride away the girl said to him:

"You are going to meet that bulldog again this morning, and if you don't lick him I'll sell you for a cent!"

Young Mr. Charlton had been humiliated and felt it keenly, but down in heart he admitted to himself that he had not only what he deserved. When a man will look at things in this light there is hope for him. It was at first decided not to go that road again until the girl had gone home. Then it was decided that if he did ride that way he would make an apology for his dog. Then the decision was to leave the "b'jove business behind him. As a matter of fact, when Mr. Charlton did ride out he was entirely undecided.

As for Miss Inez, she left it all to the dog. There was a meeting again. The coach dog was ready for it. Without "begging pawdon" of any one he went for that bull. He downed him. He bit him. He mopped the earth with him. He made it a rough house over ten rods of highway.

"I will call off my dog," said the young man as the riders came up and halted.

"I'm afraid you can't!" laughed the owner of Jack. "I guess I'll have to call mine off!"

"I—I wish to apologize for yesterday."

"Not at all, doncher know!"

"But I have arrived in the United States since yesterday!"

"Going to take out your naturalization papers and become one of us?"

"I surely am. I'll sell that bulldog this very day!"

"Yes?"

"And as for doncher know—"

"Then you may introduce yourself."

"Well, how did things come out this time?" asked the sister as Miss Inez entered the house with a laugh.

"Why, I think the patient is on the way to a perfect cure, and if he doesn't have a relapse there may be a wedding in due time."

And there was!

REALLY NO PROBLEM AT ALL

Solemn-Faced Stranger Saw at a Glance Just Which Trees Were Farthest Apart.

"Do you see that handsome row of tall poplars on the Canadian shore, standing apparently at equal distances apart?" asked a melancholy-looking man of a group of passengers on the Fort Erie ferry boat at Buffalo.

The group nodded assent.

"Well, there's quite a story connected with those trees," he continued.

"Some years ago there lived in a house in Buffalo, overlooking the river, a very wealthy banker, whose only daughter was beloved by a young surveyor. The old man was inclined to question the professional skill of young rod-and-level, and to put him to the test he directed him to set out on the Dominion shore a row of trees no two of which should be any farther apart than any other two."

"The trial proved the lover's inefficiency, and forthwith he was forbidden the house, and in despair he drowned himself in the river. Perhaps some of you gentlemen with keen eyes can tell which two trees are farthest apart."

The group took a critical view of the situation, and each member selected a different pair of trees. Finally, after much discussion, an appeal was made to the solemn-faced stranger to solve the problem.

"The first and the last," said he, calmly, resuming his cigar and walking off with the air of a sage.

SHE WAS NOT BLIND

By GRACE K. BOSTWICK.

Because he had loved her a long time, he hesitated about telling her. With the direct avowal of a woman's intuition, she surmised the truth. He had been fustling all about the subject for several moments, waiting the necessary courage. She took the matter in hand calmly.

"Why don't you tell me, Day?" she asked quietly. He started and looked at her uncomfortably. She smiled.

"Is it sure, this time?" her voice was low and even. There was not the slightest suggestion of a scene in the atmosphere. He pulled himself together with a jerk.

"Meg," he said softly, "you're a wonder! How did you know?"

"How could I help knowing?" she asked. "I am not blind."

"But I thought I have been just the same," he insisted.

"Your heart was not in it, that was all," she replied sadly.

"She is not like you," he said hesitatingly in response to her questions.

"She is little and pretty and needs someone to care for her." Margaret started. Had he gone so far already?

"I was not attracted toward her at all at first," he explained, "but she seemed so helpless and I got in the way of doing little things for her. She has the sweetest smile and she is—O, hang it all, Meg! don't make a fellow tell you such fool things!" he blurted out uneasily.

"You need tell me nothing unless you like, boy," she used the little name unconsciously. "You know you are not bound to me in the slightest way. When are you to be married?"

He flushed hotly.

"She is very lovely and she is only waiting until I can see my way clear to—"

"Then you were waiting my consent?" Her tone was cold. "By all means, let it be at once. Delay no longer."

He looked at her compassionately.

"I knew it was going to be hard on you," he said remorsefully. "I am a brute, Meg. I hated to tell you worse than—"

"You are very considerate," it was not quite a sneer, though he winced at the tope.

"You will be—we must always be the best of friends, Meg," he half questioned. She smiled bitterly.

"Friends? Why, of course; we could not be less, could we?"

"And you will come to see her and visit us and be quite the same?"

There was a note of anxiety in the man's voice that touched her.

"I can't promise," she said quietly, "for I am going away. I had meant to tell you before, but I, too, hated to hurt you." The sarcasm was lost on him.

"We have been such chums—such comrades!" his voice broke a trifle. "It is hard to say good-bye."

"Yes, it is hard," she assented gravely, but without spirit. There was a long pause.

"May I kiss you once more?" he asked haltingly. She looked at him long and searchingly.

"O, you men, you men!" she exclaimed with sudden passion, as she looked deep into his eyes with bitterness of soul. "You take all we have to give—all and still—there was a sob in her throat—"It's a little game to you," her voice was steady once more. "A little game that you play to the end—and the end is whenever the fancy dies—that is all!" He started miserably to explain.

"No, you may not! Do you think I would have the caresses that belong to another? I am not that sort. You are free to go to her—it is all right! I can say no more. O, go, go, for mercy's sake, go!" She stood, drawn to her full height, superb, queenly in her womanly dignity. He hesitated yet for a moment, looking helplessly into her face that had lived in his consciousness for three short—yes and happy years—then he turned silently and left the room, closing the door behind him.

"You take all we have to give—all and still—there was a sob in her throat—"It's a little game to you," her voice was steady once more. "A little game that you play to the end—and the end is whenever the fancy dies—that is all!" He started miserably to explain.

"No, you may not! Do you think I would have the caresses that belong to another? I am not that sort. You are free to go to her—it is all right! I can say no more. O, go, go, for mercy's sake, go!" She stood, drawn to her full height, superb, queenly in her womanly dignity. He hesitated yet for a moment, looking helplessly into her face that had lived in his consciousness for three short—yes and happy years—then he turned silently and left the room, closing the door behind him.

"You are very considerate," it was not quite a sneer, though he winced at the tope.

"You will be—we must always be the best of friends, Meg," he half questioned. She smiled bitterly.

"Friends? Why, of course; we could not be less, could we?"

"And you will come to see her and visit us and be quite the same?"

There was a note of anxiety in the man's voice that touched her.

"I can't promise," she said quietly, "for I am going away. I had meant to tell you before, but I, too, hated to hurt you." The sarcasm was lost on him.

"We have been such chums—such comrades!" his voice broke a trifle. "It is hard to say good-bye."

"Yes, it is hard," she assented gravely, but without spirit. There was a long pause.

"May I kiss you once more?" he asked haltingly. She looked at him long and searchingly.

"O, you men, you men!" she exclaimed with sudden passion, as she looked deep into his eyes with bitterness of soul. INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JULY 27.

MOSES' REQUEST REFUSED.

LESSON TEXT—Ex. 5:1-14. GOLDEN TEXT—"Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted."—Matt. 5:4.

Only one incident is mentioned with reference to that long journey Moses had to take in returning from Midian to Egypt. "The Lord met him and sought to kill him," (4:24). Moses is about to pronounce a fearful penalty, see 4:23, and it was necessary that he comprehended the terrible meaning of his threat. Also he had neglected to observe the sign of covenant peace (circumcision) with his youngest son, and that was a serious delinquency for the future leader of Israel. "It was necessary at this stage of his experience that he should learn that God is in earnest when he speaks, and will assuredly perform all that he has threatened." (Murphy.)

Showing himself with Aaron, the elders of Israel are soon convinced that God had sent them and was about to work out through Moses and Aaron the long promised deliverance.

Issue Plainly Stated.

I. Moses' Message, vv. 1-9. Moses and Aaron plainly stated the issue at the very outset, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel" (v. 1). This was at once a challenge as to the boasted superiority of the Egyptian gods. It also touched Pharaoh's pride for he was an absolute monarch and can he allow these representatives of an oppressed people any liberties? Lastly, it was a question of economic importance.

Pharaoh looked upon these Israelites as his own property, now they are claimed for another. "Let my people go." In contempt, Pharaoh exclaims, "Who is Jehovah?" It was in answer to that very question Moses had been sent and right well was Pharaoh to learn the answer ere the account is settled. Men are flippantly asking that same question today, both by word and conduct, who will find out to their final sorrow who Jehovah is, and why they should obey his voice. Pharaoh spoke the truth when he said "I know not the Lord," but though he seems to boast of that he little knew what it means for a man to set up his will against that of God. "I will not" was the proud boast of a weak, wilful, ignorant worm of the dust, for all his exalted position among men. Read 2 Thess. 1:8 and Rom. 1:28.

In reply, (v. 3) Moses and Aaron did not seek to argue the case. Very little is ever gained by such a method, much better for us to deliver God's message verbatim and trust to the holy spirit to bring conviction. Moses and Aaron were far more afraid of the pestilence and sword of Jehovah than the boasted power of Pharaoh. God does punish disobedience whether we like it or not, see Deut. 28:21. Zech. 14:16-19, etc. This fearlessness angered Pharaoh (v. 4) and he commands them and their brethren at once to resume their burdens. The world is constantly accusing the servants of God of unfeeling people for their work, see Amos 7:10, Luke 23:2 and Acts 17:6.

Truth Confirmed.

The truth of this narrative is confirmed by the bricks found in the ruins of cities built during this period of Egyptian history. The bricks were made of clay mixed with stubble, rather than the ordinary straw and baked in the sun rather than in a fire kiln.

II. Pharaoh's Method, vv. 10-15. It must have been a severe test of faith for the Israelites to have had their hopes thus dashed and more grievous burdens thrust upon them. Before, the government furnished the necessary straw, now they must get it themselves and at the same time keep up the usual toll of bricks.

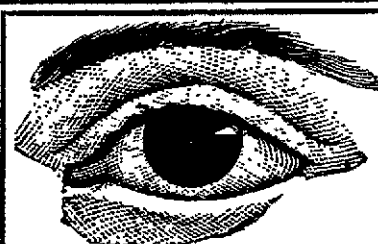

Those who were beaten (v. 14) were of their own number who were held accountable under the Egyptian taskmasters for the conduct of the whole. Is this not suggestive of one other than ourselves "who bore our sins in his own body on the tree" and "by whose stripes we are healed?"

How little we comprehend, even with centuries of Christian history as our guide and the inspired word as our teacher, the full meaning of Paul's words, "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Rom. 8:18. But God is mindful of his own and as soon as Moses and Aaron turned to him he gives them a most gracious renewal of his promise and of the ultimate blessing, see Chapter 6:1-8.

III. The Summary. God's ways of deliverance are never easy. His people are always slow to believe and his enemies have a hard hearted and terrible persistence in their opposition to him and his plans. But God does not permit this defeat, nor prevent the accomplishment of his purposes. When pain has done its work he makes it to cease. When the fire has burned out the dross he will extinguish it. Pharaoh esteemed human life cheaply, how about the sweat shop of today? "Let my people go" is the watchword of the fight that is still in progress. Israel's oppression still survives.

Money Talks

Yes, "Money talks." When it "makes the mare go," it says, "Giddyap!"

When lost on the races, it gives its late owner the horse laugh.

If money didn't talk, so many people wouldn't say "hush money."

There's Money in Hay

Yes, there is money in hay if it is properly handled, but if all of the profit is paid out for help, then haying does not pay. Hay to be profitable must be handled in the easiest and cheapest manner. How is that done? Simply by using a Keystone swath and windrow hay loader, which has a double value because it will gather hay from the swath as well as from the windrow. The Keystone will take up hay from the swath as clean as any rake, and deliver it to the wagon without any thrashing or beating. This saves labor and time—which means a saving of money.

We want you to see this loader. Come in any time.

A RESUME ON ROOSTS.

Poultry house furniture should be cheap, simple, take up little room, just fit the flock and be movable for quick cleaning and transfer.

Roosts should have these characteristics. We present two for inspection: The first shows a set with dropping boards nailed up in a corner. This roost is too heavy, costly, it cannot be moved for cleaning and red mites or ticks will hide and breed behind it like bedbugs in the cracks of a bughouse building, and if these poultry pests once get a hold a continuous fight must be kept up and often the roost be torn out to get at them. Same with stationary nests.

The second is a cheap, simple affair made of trestles, slats and a low platform, low down for big breeds. Additional trestles may be used to raise the dropping boards off of floor—for lighter breeds, and thus the only floor space occupied will be by toes of trestles.

This roost does not touch the wall, may be taken down and out for cleaning in a few minutes, is transferable and may be moved to the windows or set up in the yard in hot weather.

Thus far we have had no mites nor ticks to bother our poultry at Riverside. We ascribe this to watchfulness and roosts and nests that are simple and easy to keep clean.

Much of poultry vigor and poultry profit are lost through the ravages of insect pests, and the poultryman who neglects to use every precaution against these destroyers need not expect full success.

DON'TS.

Don't try to raise poultry in town without a fence or your neighbors will quickly take offense.

Don't work with one eye on the clock and the other on the boss. You'll get caught in the cogs and go to the dogs.

Don't bite off more chicklets than you can chew. Better hatch a reasonable number and raise them than to hatch a lot and raise them not.

Don't forget that every egg that doesn't hatch and every chick that dies is so much off the profit. The financial finale depends on the detail.

Don't over the first hatches go crazy and over the others get lazy. Be enthusiastic, optimistic and industrious all the way through in what you do and providence will favor you.

Don't waste time arguing about breeds and methods. If you're sure you're right then go ahead, but don't be a bullhead.

Don't expect your wife to make much on mongrel hens. Thoroughbred strains for beauty and gains.

Don't sell preserved eggs for fresh. Some customer slick will see through your trick you'll be jerked up quick and then what a shame for a few pennies gain you've lost your good name.

NO SILVER SPOON FOR ME!

Oh, wouldn't life be monotonous with nothing else to do but eat and sleep and fold your hands And rock the whole day through?

To be born with a silver spoon in your mouth.

To never know the joy Of earning that first dollar When you were a growing boy;

To never dream what you would do When you got to be a man And had a trade and drew good pay And carried a dinner can;

To never feel that wondrous thrill Of drawing the first pay And hear the boss say, "You're the goods; You get a raise pay day."

To never rise to a higher place, To put no cash in the bank And have no one in this wide world But your honest self to thank;

To never feel the happiness Of saying to your bride, "I've bought this home with my own earnings And have more in the bank beside."

Let others suck their silver spoons And rock their chairs all day. I prefer to work while God lets me And draw an honest pay.

C. M. BARNITZ.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. Which do you prefer—the long house or the colony house? A. We prefer the long house. It is cheaper, warmer, requires less ground and is a labor saver. Carrying feed from one colony house to another through snow and wintry wind is no joke.

Q. How about keeping moth balls in nest while hens are hatching? A. They don't amount to much. Dust with louse powder instead.

Q. How long does it take for a chick to kick the shell? A. A vigorous chick generally comes out five to ten hours after pipping shell.

Q. How much ought Toulouse goslings a month old weigh? A. From four to five pounds.

Q. Do hen and duck eggs hatch well together? A. No. Duck are larger than hen eggs, and eggs should be of like size for the hen to turn and heat them well. Hens' eggs hatch a week earlier; thus duck eggs will get smeared, and the hen is apt to leave them to mother the chicks.

Q. Is beef blood good for chickens, and how is it prepared? A. It is boiled in a sack, but must be fed moderately. It is not so safe nor good as cut green bone.

Q. How is sulphur for a bug killer and a ben tonic? A. Burning sulphur to kill red mites we have not found effectual. Much of it goes through the cracks in the average henhouse, and mites that are affected revive. It is a blood purifier, but if weather gets damp while fowl has sulphur in its system rheumatism often results.

Q. Is beef scrap so prepared that it will not deteriorate with age? Some manufacturers claim their scrap cannot spoil. A. We draw the line at three months. That's three months too old for some.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Many do not bother testing eggs set under hens, but such eggs are just as apt to be infertile as those in an incubator, and thus the hatch is lost. These eggs need not be brought to the house and thus rendered liable to chill, nor need a lamp be taken to the nest. Use an electric flashlight. It's dandy for the purpose and safe anywhere.

One great thing about geese is that after they are about three weeks old they can paddle their own canoe. All you need do is to furnish water and grass. And don't forget that hens turn grass into greenbacks too. Green stuff takes the place of high priced grain when fed as part of the ration, and yet lots of fanciers whom greens cost nothing let their fowls suffer for it all summer.

Mrs. George W. Simpson of Camden, N. J., claims to have a hen that lays an egg in which is inclosed a bright new nickel. She should take this hen and mate her to a Golden Wyandotte, and then perhaps she will hatch out a golden eagle.

The editor of an English poultry journal suggests the extension of the period of consumption of the turkey to prevent a glut of birds at Christmas. Think of that, you turkey hungry American who couldn't get a turkey at Christmas because there was none or because you couldn't raise the dough to buy the high priced high perch perfect.

Birds with heavy fluffs like Cochins often lay infertile eggs during the breeding season to the surprise of their owner. To prevent this it is the habit of some to trim or pull the fluffs just as the tails of fan tail pigeons are often cut.

The Leghorn was brought to this country from Italy in 1853 and has sustained its fame in the laying game ever since. It is the most numerous breed in America today. It is the business hen that is the foundation of the poultry business, and, though every little while some fancier proclaims the debut of a breed that will surpass the Leghorn in egg production, the Leghorn keeps on the job and retains the egg championship of the earth.

The older ducks get the later they lay in the season, and the fewer eggs they lay the fatter they get. The big plants market breeding ducks after their second season, as after that they do not pay.

We advise our graduates of agricultural colleges that though their alma mater rather adorns them with a halo, that halo is soon worn to a frazzle when they take the platform at a farmers' institute, and are unprepared to answer the questions propounded. That question box is a trap that has caught many a fellow who has depended on his halo to carry him through.

FIRST COAL DISCOVERY

Richmond Basin in Virginia Produced Fuel Century and a Half Ago.

The presence of coal in the Richmond Basin of Virginia was known as far back as 1700 and mines were opened and worked at as early a date as 1750. In 1759 shipments were made to some of the Northern States. In 1822, according to R. C. Taylor, in his "Statistics of Coal," the production amounted to 54,000 short tons. For nearly a century the Richmond Basin maintained some prominence as a coal producer, but in 1882, when the Pocahontas district was opened, followed shortly afterward by the development of the New River field in West Virginia, the mines in the Richmond Basin were put at a disadvantage and operations were for many years practically suspended.

During the last four years, however, new life has been introduced into the Richmond Basin areas by the reopening of the old Gayton mines in Henrico County. For many years after the opening of the southwestern Virginia and the southern West Virginia coals the mines of the Richmond Basin lay idle or were worked only for a restricted local market. The Richmond Basin is the only area producing free-burning coal which lies immediately adjacent to the Atlantic seaboard.

Much Enticing Fiction in Lippincott's

This is the time of year when a number of magazines get out "fiction numbers." Lippincott's, however, does not need to do this, as all its numbers are fiction ones. A timely special article and a little clever miscellany merely serve to add variety.

The August issue contains an unusually fine complete novel, entitled "The Egerton Standard," by Eleanor M. Ingram, a great favorite with Lippincott's readers. Her book, "From the Car Behind," had a tremendous sale, and a new novel by her is sure to be eagerly welcomed. "The Egerton Standard" has for its theme family pride—two kinds. Egerton, the hero, is a very wealthy young business man, the son of an exacting, tyrannical father. Both father and son pride themselves upon their unswerving honesty. But young Egerton falls in love with the daughter of an impoverished old Spanish aristocrat, and the old Don will not permit his daughter to wed a man who cannot show an unblemished line of ancestors. Egerton's grandfather made and peddled soap—the foundation of a business which has grown to be worth millions. Egerton gets his own way—and the girl—by a trick. Of course exposure follows, and there is a merry rumpus. All ends happily, but for a time we are reminded of the immovable-body-and-irresistible-force problem. It is really a novel situation, and very cleverly worked out.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A Tip For Campers

Here's a little tip for campers who want to include a frying pan in their camp outfit and yet don't want to trust to the usual expedient of balancing it insecurely on the embers or on unsteady stones. Take two pieces of one-inch pipe about three feet long for horizontal supports. These are supported by steel rods driven into the ground and having a right angle bend of about two and a half inches at the top, which enters the ends of the pipes.

The pipes should be held about six inches above the ground and about four inches apart. The supports can be of strap iron 1/4 inch by one, making sure, of course, that they possess the requisite stiffness. In case they are to be used in sandy soil it is well to twist them at the bottom to give them a better grip in the ground.

It is possible to cook as many as four different articles at the same time with one fire properly built. The weight of the whole outfit should not exceed twelve to fifteen pounds, and the problem of packing in a canoe or on a horse is a simple one.—August Outing.

The Making of a Big League Ball Player

In the August American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton writes an article entitled "The Making of a Big Leaguer." It is a true story of the development of one of the greatest ball players in the United States as told by himself to Mr. Fullerton. This player, of course, began the game as a boy and passed through all the stages from amateur to minor league teams and then into the big league. In this early experience he became a great victim of the "swelled head," and finally lost his position on the big league team. After many vicissitudes he lost his "swelled head" and got into the big league again, where, today, at thirty-four years of age, he is one of the great veterans of the game.

Is It a Lie?

REAL BARGAINS IN Rugs and Furniture

I will not LIE, nor will I misrepresent, in order to sell goods.

But I need the money and the room and you need the goods.

And in order to move them quickly, I have put a price on them that will make them go quick and fast.

Below I quote just a few prices and guarantee all other prices just as low.

RUGS

Almost any grade in sizes from 27x54 inches to 12x15 feet.

8—8x12 Tapestry $ 7.50
9—9x12 Tapestry 9.65
9x12 Velvet 12.75
9x12 Axminster 13.50
9x12 Body Brussels 17.75

Other sizes and grades correspondingly low.

FURNITURE

It is very unsatisfactory quoting prices on furniture without illustrating, and even then it is hard to judge. Come in and see the goods and judge them if I am not offering you the best bargain you ever heard of.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

These very low prices, good for this month only.
Nothing delivered free at these prices.

DO YOU HAVE A SON?

Would you like your son to study agriculture, manual training and bookkeeping, and at the same time fit himself to teach? Do you know that if he is over seventeen years of age he is entitled to $60 per year from the State to pay his tuition in a Normal School? Do you know that when he graduates he will receive from $75 to $100 per month salary as a teacher? Why not send him to the Lock Haven State Normal School next fall? Good board, furnished room, washing, electric light, steam heat, etc., at a rate cheaper than you can furnish it at your own home. Send for particulars and illustrated catalog to Dr. George P. Singer, Principal, Lock Haven, Pa. Adv.
